N.B.—Water for Analysis should be contained in a clean and clear Winchester quart bottle, furnished with a stopper; if Analysis be for Manufacturing purposes, One Gallon of Water is necessary.

The presence of large quantities of Nitrous Acid or Nitric Acid in Water is a suspicious circumstance, as these substances are formed from nitrogenous bodies; they are, however, not noxious, and Nitric Acid, in moderate amounts, may occur in good hard water. More than 0.005 grain of Albuminoid Ammonia per gallon, is considered to be rather, and 0.01 grain decidedly, excessive; and the higher the proportion beyond. OI grain the more impure the water is. The most dangerous ingredient of water is Albuminoid matter of animal origin. Dark-coloured, peaty waters often, however, contain much Albuminoid Nitrogen derived from comparatively harmless vegetable matters.
