regret to have to report to you that from time to time I noticed that a portion of the patients meat was missing. I spoke to the cook (Bridget Joyce) she denied all knowledge of it. I tried to prevent it by weighing the meat, and not allowing it to be cut up in pieces. On Wed 24th Feb I weighed it as usual when cooked, I missed portion of it then made a search of the kitchen and found two pieces (uncooked) hidden in the salt. I accused the cook of cutting it off. which she denied. I sent for you, not been in the house, I sent for the Matron, again the girl denied it. The Chaplin came in and I told him of the occurrence. She admitted to him she did it. It has since come to my knowledge that she and a ward-maid (Annie Cowroy) had an arrangement with the butchers, to have money instead of meat —
