It appears that on the 28th May last an order was given that a Porter should be advertised for, age not to exceed 40 years, but that instead of giving notice by advertisement the Clerk merely posted a notice on the Workhouse gate, — on his own shewing at the time, Andrew Forde was 40 years of age in the year 1852, altho' in his answer to the query on that point he states he is only from 46 to 48 years, under the circumstances the Commissioners must decline to sanction the appointment of Andrew Forde as Porter, and request the Guardians to proceed to a fresh election, and to call upon the Clerk for an explanation of the proceeding adopted by him.

Ordered that advertisements be opened for the situation of Porter for this day fortnight in the Galway Indicator and Clare Freeman, age not to exceed 40 years, and also that the Clerk give the required explanation.
